YouTube/APT – April 27, 2026 - Protesters In Barcelona Slam NATO, Demanding End To War Support | APT

Hundreds of protesters marched through Barcelona opposing NATO and calling for peace amid escalating Middle East tensions. Demonstrators waved Palestinian, Lebanese, and Iranian flags while holding banners against war and military alliances. Activists criticized NATO's role in global conflicts and accused it of fueling violence and instability. Protesters also voiced concerns over international policies and leadership, including criticism of Donald Trump. The rally highlighted growing public opposition to military escalation and demands for diplomacy, peace, and reduced global tensions in ongoing geopolitical conflicts.

YouTube/Times Now World – April 26, 2026 - ANTI-WAR PROTEST: Massive Protest Erupts Outside Raf Fairford In UK Over US Bombers

Hundreds of anti-war activists gathered outside RAF Fairford in Gloucestershire on Saturday, protesting the use of the base by US forces for military operations linked to Iran. Demonstrators accused the UK government of enabling foreign military action from British soil and waved Palestinian and Iranian flags while surrounding the perimeter fence. Organised by the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament and the Stop the War Coalition, protesters called for an end to US bomber operations and greater diplomatic engagement in the Middle East. The UK government has previously authorised limited defensive use of British bases, while US officials have criticised restrictions on operational support. Authorities monitored the demonstration as tensions over regional conflicts continue to escalate globally.

“The 90 billion loan to Ukraine has been approved ... here in Cyprus...Today they are going to talk about getting Ukraine into the European Union ...They are also talking about the militarisation of Europe so that they can go into a war with Russia, that’s the obvious purpose ... By the way Alexander, Finland has admitted a proposal to the parliament in order to remove legal barrier for hosting nuclear weapons ... And we also have Poland and France. They are engaging in military exercises preparing to, or game planning the nuclear bombing of Russia, of St.Petersburg. So they are having all these military excercises about flying over Russia and bombing St.Petersburg. And we also have the UK which is also game planning some sort of an attack or invasion of Kaliningrad. All of these can happen over the next couple of weeks, all of these military exercises and operations ...”

UNN Kiyv – April 23, 2026 - Nuclear deterrence returns to Europe – the continent prepares for war

Poland joins France's nuclear deterrence initiative, and Finland plans to allow the storage of nuclear weapons. Europe is strengthening its security.

Poland plans to join the French initiative to create a new nuclear deterrence system in Europe. At the same time, in Finland, the government submitted a proposal to parliament to allow the import and storage of nuclear weapons on the country's territory, writes the BBC.

European states have begun to systematically change their approach to their own security against the backdrop of Russian aggression, and the scenario of a Russian attack on one of the NATO countries is no longer perceived as purely theoretical. That is why statements are emerging about strengthening armies, the possible deployment of nuclear weapons in Finland, and the development of new deterrence formats. This opinion was expressed in an exclusive comment to UNN by political scientist Oleh Lisnyi. ...

CNN – April 21, 2026 - US at risk of running out of missiles if another war breaks out after depleting stockpile in Iran operations

The US military has significantly depleted its stockpile of key missiles during the war with Iran and created a "near-term risk" of running out of ammunition in a future conflict should one arise in the next few years, according to experts and three people familiar with recent internal Defense Department stockpile assessments.

Over the last seven weeks of war, the US military has expended at least 45% of its stockpile of Precision Strike Missiles; at least half of its inventory of THAAD missiles, which are designed to intercept ballistic missiles; and nearly 50% of its stockpile of Patriot air defense interceptor missiles, according to a new analysis conducted by the Center for Strategic and International Studies. ...

RESPONSIBLE STATECRAFT – March 25, 2026 - Finland moves to allow hosting of nuclear weapons in dangerous shift

Washington should make clear that it does not want to place nukes near the 800-plus mile Russian-Finnish border

Pavel Devyatkin is a Non-Resident Fellow at the Quincy Institute and Senior Associate at The Arctic Institute.

Finland is moving to lift its long-standing legal ban on hosting nuclear weapons within Finnish territory. On NATO's sensitive frontier with Russia, this is a step in the wrong direction.

The U.S. should be the first country to object to this reckless shift.

On March 5, Helsinki published draft amendments to the Nuclear Energy Act and the Criminal Code that would allow nuclear weapons to be brought into or based on Finnish soil, despite widespread public skepticism toward the change. ...
